CONDITIONS

All Sea-Fire products are tested after manufacture and shipped in perfect working order. Damage noted upon receipt of shipment should be addressed as a shipping claim, the filing of which is the sole responsibility of the consignee for which the total compensatory award will be limited to that appropriated by the carrier. Insured freight costs are the responsibility of the consignee. Missing component parts and damage noted upon installation are typically the result of mishandling during the installation process and will not qualify for warranty coverage. Incidents of accidental discharge are not indicative of product failure - heed product warnings to avoid injury and/or costs. Damaged products should be returned for repair or replacement under an official return authorization number, with associated costs assigned a purchase order number and shipping charges prepaid. Returned products must be received in resaleable condition to qualify for credit, and are subject to a standard 20% restocking fee. No returns will be processed without proper return authorization.
